Dr. Sandra Landry, Director of Student Success, Mitchell Community College, was a guest at our meeting.

Items discussed at the meeting:

- 3-D printer
- The effect of decreased enrollment on our libraries – discussed new legislation that seeks to base funding on completion and employment as opposed to enrollment numbers
- Food in libraries
- Technologies in study rooms
- Paint wall with white board paint, use dry erase markers in study rooms
- Students at CPCC can book study rooms via Encore/Lib Cal, and then they are checked out in Sierra; faculty equipment can be booked in Sierra
- Gmail accounts for students & calendar- S. Piedmont
- EZ Proxy $495.00 (OCLC)
- Smart Start Resource Center (Alliance for Children) S. Piedmont materials for pre-school
- ProQuest – Americas Newspapers, JSTOR – less than $1,000
- Gale – Opposing View Points & 4 others – Pick 5 – Suggestion – some colleges use video of Library introduction as part of new Student orientation
- Assistive Technology in the Libraries – Cleveland Comm. College has an Instructional Development Coordinator, others just have equipment to circulate
- South Piedmont began loaning “old” laptops overnight to students, $5.00 fine, must sign contract, can reserve them also to use inside library; CPCC has laptops to circulate with two tiers of circulation privilege and also uses equipment use agreement forms
- Database subscriptions: what do we use and how do we like them – changes in NC Live – CCC is keeping Small Business Center & Biography Reference Center
- Library Instruction
- What kind of classes (other than Library Instruction) are you teaching? DRE
- Has your class load increased recently?
- What activities/lessons are you offering for these classes?

After the meeting Joan Jordan gave us a tour of the beautiful campus of Mitchell Community College and then lunch was enjoyed by some at a wonderful Thai restaurant.

The next meeting will be at the NCCCLA annual conference at Wake Tech Community College March 16 and March 17, 2015.

Respectfully submitted,
Harriet Dameron
District 5 Secretary
